

New Course Approvals

Approved by the Engineering College Council, 18 October 2007

Any course offered by a department must be approved by that department's curriculum committee and is then "on the books." Departments will then decide whether/how to approve new courses offered by the College and other College departments as technical or program electives.

Any Engineering (EG) or Engineering, Science, Technology and Society (ESTS) course must be approved by the undergraduate curriculum committee comprising the five Directors of Undergraduate Studies and the Assistant Dean for Academic Affairs.* EG and ESTS courses approved by this undergraduate curriculum committee will then go to College Council for final approval. Departments will then decide whether/how to approve new courses offered by the College and other College departments as technical or program electives.

*Changed from "Director of Academic Affairs," which was the text originally approved by the College Council, to align with Dean's Office organizational responsibilities.
